RICMOND THEATRE

One of the most absorbing tales of love and patriotism that the great conflict has called forth has been put into a motion picture drama especially for the charming William Fox star, Peggy Hyland, and will be seen tonight at the Richmond. This play is called "Bonnie Annie Laurie," and deals with the fate and happiness of a Scottish lassie who is the idol of a captain in the Scots Guards and the dearly beloved of an American officer of marines. How these two rivals are brought face to fase in No Man's Land—the deeds of valor they perform—how the two wounded lovers are placed under the care of their sweet mistress, now a war nurse, and how she solves the most difficult problem that a woman can be called on to face, are all set forth in this great drama of the screen.

DETERMINED ON DRIVE

Committee of Seven Great Agencies Want All to Contribute Liberally in Campaign Which Begins Monday—Work of Library Association.

The inevitable acceptance of the terms for peace as prepared by President Woodrow Wilson and representatives of our allies in the World War, has caused the committee in charge of the United War Work Campaign to add strength to their determination to have this city take its place with other progressive cities on the roll of honor and this will be done if all citizens will follow the example of a former editor of the Gazette who gave liberally to the various organizations working here. The talk of peace should cause all to feel deeply the obligation we owe to the men and women who have successfully fought the battles against the murderous foe and his allies. It should prompt you to give liberally to the seven organizations united in this war fund campaign. The men returning from the battle line, need and they are entitled to every comfort which this rich country can give. The work of the Salvation Army, Young Men's Christian Association, Young Women's Christian Association, the Knights of Columbus, the War Camp Community Service, the Jewish Welfare Board and the American Library Association will last long after the battles are over.

The American Library Association will continue its wonderful work of getting instructive and entertaining books to the men at home and across the seas. This is important work now. Many who left promising opportunities are now thinking about getting back to them. They will turn to beeks pertinent to their vocations and these will be supplied by the American Library Association. Do you know that at our nearest camp, Humphreys, and at all other camps for American soldiers there is a Library War Service maintained, also, classes in French, Mathematics, History and Business Practice regularly held and in this way hundreds of thousands of boys, eager that these warfare years shall be years of progress are keeping in touch with their studies at night. Can you think of the boy, the man, the woman, in the service and not contribute liberally to the United War Work Campaign? Everybody is interested: Jew, Gentile, Catholic, Protestant!

"Let's see them through! Keep our boys fit for life! Your dollars will help to do it."

The local exemption board tomorrow morning will begin the work of mailing out questionnaires to men from thirty-six to forty-six years old, and also to all of those who are eighteen years old.

Each day the board will send out a total of 250 questionnaires until the work is completed. There are about 2,500 registrants between these ages. The work therefore, will take about ten days.

The men between the ages of nineteen years and thirty-six years already have received their questionnaires and have been classified for service and soon will be called on to go to the various cantonments. It is planned to take the older men in class one later.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS

Postpone Election of Four Policemen Until November 13

The board of police commissioners held a meeting last night for the purpose of electing four policemen to fill vacancies on the force. All of the members of the board were present and Mayor Fisher presided.

Upon motion of Commissioner Knight it was decided to postpone the election until November 13 in view of the fact that there were only three candidates for the four vacancies. Mr. Knight also explained that in the meantime City Council will hold a meeting and it probably will be determined whether or not an increase in salary will be granted the police. Should the increase be granted he said he thought there would be more applicants for the positions.

It is understood that the joint committee on police and finance will recommend that the salary of privates on the force be increased and also the pay of the officers.

CHRISTMAS CAUSES WORRY

Enormous Number of Cars Needed to Carry Gifts to Men "Over There."

The French post-office department of the expeditionary force has started to worry already about the Christmas parcel question. It has figured that if every man in the American army is allowed a 5-pound package for Christmas, it will require 700 cars per day working 10 days to transport the packages from the ports to the consumers. And they don't know whether the cars are going to be available. But the postmaster-in-chief has promised, if the transportation is available, every soldier will be allowed a Christmas parcel.

Sergeant Samuel J. Haynes, thirty years old, of 420 North Alfred street, this city, was killed in action in France October 7 acording to word received by his wife in this city.

The deceased was called to the colors October 6, 1917, and went to Camp Lee where he received his training. He had been in France since last May, having sailed for overseas May 13. The deceased was employed as a clerk at the Potomac railroad yards up to the time of enlisting.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise Kidwell Haynes whom he married October 3, 1917. In addition he is survived by five brothers and a sister as follows: Harry Haynes, Washington; Joseph Haynes, Washington; Marshall Haynes, Lowell, N. C.; Edward Haynes, Alexandria; Harris Haynes, now in France, the last named recently being severely wounded while fighting in France, and Mrs. Joseph Reynolds.

JOHN STRIDER Jr., KILLED

Former Alexandrian Dies on Battlefield.

The many friends and acquaintances of John H. Strider, a former Alexandrian, and at one time President of the Common Council, will regret to learn that his son John was killed in France September 30. Years ago Mr. Strider with his family moved from Alexandria to Susquehanna, Pa., where he accepted the position of superintendent of the Erie Railroad Printing Office. The younger Strider was lieutenant of his company and was second in command when killed.

Lieutenant Mulliver, who announces the death of the young soldier, pays him a high tribute. The letter is addressed to the young patriot's mother:

3rd Platoon, Co., I, 314 Inf.
Somewhere in France.

Mrs. Rose Strider:

It is with great sorrow, I say your son John has paid the highest tribute one could pay in this hour of war and hardship. He has died the most honorable death—being killed in action, without suffering.

He was my second in command and was a leader, the men following unhesitatingly. Need I say the whole company mourn him and the rest that gave their lives so nobly that the cause would go on.

He was killed alongside one of his men, both being killed from the same shell burst. He had a little wound above the heart, but I presume the shock of the burst caused the casualty. Being on the firing line at the time, it was necessary to turn his body over to the Chaplain from whom I hope you will receive more news.

Please accept my heartfelt regrets and sympathies. Next to you, I feel his loss as being incomparable.

Faithfully yours,
Lt. Gerard A. Mulliver,
Co. I, 314th Inf. N. A.

ALLIES AGREE ON TERMS

Marshal Foch Expected to Present Them to German Commander—Should They be Accepted the War Will End.

Agreement by representatives of the allies and the United States in Paris on the terms of the armistice to be offered Germany was officially announced by the State Department last night.

The armistice terms have not yet been presented to the enemy, nor have they been received in this country.

They are expected to be presented to Germany today. The accepted form, if the manner in which Austria's capitulation to Italy is followed, will be to have them presented by Marshal Foch to the German army commander-in-chief. Gen. von Lossberg, who was Ludendorff's successor may be the recipient of the terms of the entente nations and this government.

If Germany accepts the armistice terms the war will be over. It is firmly believed here that she will be compelled to accept them, because of the Austrian debacle and conditions within her own country.

The State Department's announcement was made at 9:25 o'clock last evening. The "unity of counsel," which President Wilson urged in his New York address in September, has been admirably carried out. The statement says the armistice terms were agreed to unanimously, and the report further states "that diplomatic unity has been completely achieved under conditions of utmost harmony."

There were no indications at the State Department last night as to when the terms would be made public here. It is expected, however that their publication will follow as soon as they are either accepted or rejected by Germany. This was the procedure followed in the cases of Turkey and Austria-Hungary, both of whom, however, accepted our terms.

Military effort on the part of the United States and the allied governments will not be relaxed one iota even after the dispatch of the terms.

FOOD SUPPLIES SHORT

Farmers Urge That President Use Drastic Means to Secure Help For Them.

Washington, Nov. 5.—Drafting men for farm work has been suggested to the President as a means of meeting the problem of food production.

The President, however, has suggested to a committee which proposed the draft that farm organizations set out to enroll a great volunteer force pledged to devote themselves to the agricultural industry.

The gravity of the farm labor situation is admitted by all who know the facts. It means, it is declared, a serious decline in food production and still higher prices. By reason of this a council, has been organized, with representatives from most of the larger farm organizations.

The committee wrote the President pointing out that farm labor has been seriously depleted not only by the draft for direct military service but for industrial purposes as well, and asked that no more farmers actually and continuously engaged in farming dairy, livestock raising and similar agricultural pursuits be taken under the draft than absolutely necessary. It was suggested that men should be drafted for farm work and respond to orders from district boards to help their neighbors when they could do so without impairing their own work. They asked that some insignia or badge be given such men engaged in farm work.

The President replied to the committee's letter that he felt that a draft for farm labor would be hardly consistent with the ideas of the utter freedom of labor, but that it would be entirely consistent with our standards for the farm organizations to undertake to enroll a great volunteer force which he thought would meet the situation. He stated that the question of insignia was surrounded with difficulty, as it might be conterfeited and worn by unauthorized persons.

ECHO OF DEFUNCT BANK

Final Decree Given in Corporation Court Winding up Affairs of Mercantile Railway Building and Loan Association Which Collapsed in 1911

The last echo of the failure of the Mercantile Railway Building and Loan Association, which institution collapsed early in January 1911, was recorded in the corporation court today when a final decree was entered in the suit styled F. F. Marbury and others against the Merchantile Railway Building and Loan Association, winding up the affairs of the defunct concern.

When the concern closed its doors hundreds of persons here and in other parts of the state lost their holdings. It was located at the northeast corner of Prince and Fairfax streets.

Since its failure the case has been pending in the courts and the action of the court now winds up its affairs completely.

The failure of the Mercantile Railway Building and Loan Association soon followed the crash of the Virginia Safe Deposit and Trust Corporation which institution had branches scattered in different parts of the state. Thousands of depositors lost also by the collapse of this institution.

SEEK GIRL'S ASSAILANTS

Brutes Strip Helpless Victim of Jewelry—Crime Occurred Near Large Gypsy Camp

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 5.—The police of Mt. Wimans' are scouring the vicinity of Westport and Baltimore county for four negroes or gypsies who held up Miss Bessie Undutch, 17 years old, 509 East Clement street with a revolver, brutally beat and assaulted her about 7:30 o'clock Sunday night on the county side of the Hanover street bridge. Miss Undutch is at her home suffering from severe bruises and lacerations.

Miss Undutch was accompanied by Corp. Harry G. Johnson and Private Raymond Henion, both of the Fourteenth Service Company, at Camp Meade, and Miss Ida Snyderman, 18 years old, 106 Harrison street. Miss Snyderman also was attacked but succeeded in breaking away from her assailants before they left the road at the south end of the bridge.

According to Miss Undutch, the two couples left her home to take a walk. They crossed the bridge and were walking up a road on the county side when they were approached by four men, who resembled negroes or dark-skinned white men. They did not see the men until the latter were upon them, as it was dark. One of the men seized and held Henion while two others picked up Miss Undutch and carried her off. Another picked up Miss Snyderman, but was forced to release her when Corporal Johnson came after him.

The soldiers were unable to go to the assistance of Miss Undutch, as two of the men covered them with pistols. Johnson and Henion saw the men carry the girl up a step embankment and then lost sight of her.

The trio informed the Brooklyn police of the incident and returned to the scene with Chief Helmer and Patrolmen Connor and Mushaw. They followed the trail of the accused to a point in the woods half a mile from the road, where they discovered blood stains. The officers inquired at a farmhouse nearby, where they found Miss Undutch in a semi-conssious condition.

The girl was able to tell Chief Helmer that the men had dragged and carried her to an open spot in the woods, where one of them pulled out a blackjack and struck her across the face. All of her jewelry was taken.

There is a large camp of gypies near the spot and several holdups have taken place in the vicinity in the last few days.

HUN LINE REELS BACK

Allies' Terrific Blows—Advance More Than Fourteen Miles, Freeing Forty French Villages—Capture Five Thousand Prisoners.

London, Nov. 5.—The whole German line between the Dutch border and east of the Meuse is again reeling backwards under the shock of terrific blows.

Pershing's First army swept forward on a front of nearly twenty miles astride the Meuse, battered in the German retreating hinge and last night stood less than ten miles south of Sedan.

French, British and American troops attacking on a forty-mile front south of the Scheldt toward Mons and Maubeuge broke down the German resistance everywhere, took 10,000 prisoners and 200 guns and reached the Franco-Belgian frontier east of Valenciennes. They were last night only ten miles west of the fortress of Maubeuge and thirteen miles southwest of Mons.

Further north French and American troops cleared the west bank of the Scheldt above Audenarde and are ready to cross the stream.

On the extreme left of the Western line, between the Dutch border and Ghent, the Belgians followed up their great advance of Sunday, and Ghent is unofficially reported in their hands.

The new great retreat of the Teutons was forced chiefly by the smashing of their pivotal front astride the Meuse. The main line of German communications there, running through Sedan and Montmedy, is under continuous American fire. The Yankees are only a mile from Beaumont and Stenay, and at the latter point only eight miles separate them from the fortress of Montmedy.

More than 5,000 prisoners had been taken by Pershing's troops up to late yesterday afternoon, and since the inception of the drive Saturday they have advanced more than fourteen miles, freeing forty French villages.

The drive spread to the east bank of the Meuse yesterday as far as Remoivalle.

The drive spread to the east bank of the Meuse yesterday as far as Remoivalle.

On their left they are greatly aided by Gen. Gouraud's French Fourth army, which, in turn, is supported to the northwest by Mangin's and Debeney's army has crossed the Sambre-Oise Canal, and on his left the British are three miles beyond it.

Rome, Nov. 5.—Three hundred thousand prisoners and 5,000 guns had been counted by the allies on the Italian front before the armistice went into effect at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

These figures were made official by Gen. Diaz late yesterday.

Immense stores of material were also captured during the last phase of the Austro-Italian war.

In Albania the Italians have captured Scutari, the war office announced.

THREATEN STRIKE

Amsterdam, Nov. 5.—Germany is on the verge of a huge strike, intended to enforce peace, according to a proclamation published in the Berlin Vorwaerts, semi-official government organ.

This proclamation urges the workers of Germany to refuse to respond to the summons to walk out and tie up the nation's industries.

GRAND THEATRE

Artistic settings are a characteristic incidental feature of all Metro pictures starring Harold Lockwood, but all past efforts in this direction are said to have been excelled in "Lend Me Your Name," the star's latest All-Star Series production which will be shown at the Grand Theatre tomorrow.

Elaborate representations have been made for the town and country homes of the Earl of Gilleigh, where in all the interior scenes transpire, and one of California's most famous show places was used for the making of the exterior scenes. The combination of the two provides a background that is artistically delightful.

This offering at the Grand tomorrow will be of especial interest to those devotees of the silent drama who read of the death of Harold Lockwood recently.

THE ELECTION TODAY

There has been less animation at the polls in Alexandria today than was ever in evidence in the history of the city. Were it not for booths which stand in front of the voting places one would not know an election was in progress. There are but two candidates' names on the tickets, that of Hon. Thomas S. Martin, who is to succeed himself as United States Seantor from Virginia, and Hon. C. C. Carlin, who will be returned to his seat in the House of Representatives.

Unfortunately, however, such serene conditions do no texist in many other places in our country. Republicans, who have long been in the minority, are anxious to get back, and are ready to ride any hobby in order to accomplish their purpose. In the absence of any real issue, they have had the temerity to attack the President's policy during the present war, although all the civilized world is holding up his hands and looking to him as the Moses which is leading freemen from threatened bondage.

The fact that there is no opposition to our Senator and Congressman is no excuse for any one failing to deposit his ballot. We should roll up a large vote for these veterans who have upheld Mr. Wilson during these trying times. It is hoped these suggestions will reach the eyes of suffragans before the close of the day, and that such will not allow the sun to go down without voting, thus affirming the work of their able representatives as well as that of our noble President.

Today the voters of the United States have a golden opportunity to administer a stinging rebuke to despotism.

It must be admitted that President Wilson has rendered the country unparalled service in peace and war. He directed the laying of the foundations of a financial structure which stood firm as a rock when an earthquake shook the world. He held the country aloof from war as long as peace could be maintained with honor. When the moment came for the use of force to prevent the threatened overthrow of civilization, he advocated the use of force without limit. Under his guidance we have written in the past year the proudest pages in American history.

The President has frankly asked his fellow-countrymen to indicate by their votes in today's election whether or not they approve of his efforts faithfully to serve them.

Every foreign land not under the dominion of German influence hails Wilson as the world's leader. Should we prefer the leadership of discredited partisans who are seething with malice and envy because Woodrow Wilson has so successfully performed the tasks for which they were manifestly incompetent and unfit? Our vote today will be the answer.

THE WAR MAP OF TODAY

Armistice terms to be offered Germany have been agreed upon unanimously and signed by representatives of the Allies and the United States in France. If accepted, they mean surrender and immediate end of the war, leaving final peace terms to the dictation of the victors.

Complete, effective surrender of Austria-Hungary is provided by the United States-Allied armistice terms, now operative have been made public by the State Department. Not only in Austria rendered impotent to take any further part in the war as a belligerent, but under the terms to which she has agreed the way is opened for Allied armies to move through Austria to the German frontier. The Allies, under these terms, are given the right to use all roads, rail and water ways in Austro-Hungarian territory.

As is observed by a contemporary, the combined forces of the entente powers amount to at least two and a half million men. Deducting half a million men as the army of occupation in Asia Minor, Bulgaria and the dual monarchy, the allies have at their disposal a force of two million men for operations against Germany's southern frontier. The concentration of this force should not take very long or prove very difficult. Masters of the Black Sea, the allied fleets can convey the armies in Asia Minor to the Bulgarian and Roumanian ports. They further hold two lines of railway running through Bulgaria to the Hungarian and Roumanian frontiers. The Danube is navigable from its delta in the Black Sea right up to Vienna. Through the Adriatic troops can be conveyed to Fiume and Trieste and thence by rail through Austrian territory. Bavaria, Saxony and Silesia are thus directly menaced. It is not the territory of Prussia alone that is now threatened. Munich and Dresden already see the invading armies advancing with giant strides.

It is probable, too, that if the allies should promise that the provinces wrested from Denmark in 1864 shall be returned to her that country would take the field against Germany and cut her off from all communication with the outer world by the north.

As the allies have solemnly promised the Poles that their ancient kingdom shall be restored, with an outlet to the sea, they may be trusted to mount guard on Germany's eastern frontier and thus complete her encirclement and isolation from the outside world.

The ring of steel, tipped with 10,000,000 bayonets, is slowly but surely increasing its pressure, crushing the German empire in its fatal grasp. Surrender, unconditional surrender, is the only way it can escape destruction.

IS THE MILLENIUM NEAR?

Seven hundred and forty years before the Prince of Peace appeared in the hostelry at Bethlehem the prophet Isaiah published the following which has encouraged every person of good will to these many years. It has oft been quoted during this terrible struggle upon which the curtain, that is to the good Lord, is about to fall:

And it shall come to pass in the last days that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it.

And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem.

And he shall judge (rule) among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plough shares and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up the sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

The prophet looked far into the future. He knew the land of Palestine was destined to be turned over to God's ancient people eventually, and now after having been trodden under the feet of the Moslems for centuries we of this day and generation see the Holy Land in the hands of friends of Isreal with the likelihood of their restoration of the Israelites in the Promised Land.

The Son of Man in one of His forecasts tells us that "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." It looks as though "the times of the Gentiles" were about to be fulfilled.

An exchange in referring to the momentous events now in evidence and the rapid transitions calls attention to the fact that history is being made with incredible swiftness these days.

The mind is dazed by the rush of stupendous events. Mighty nations are breaking up and ancient thrones are toppling down on every hand and an overwhelming flood of change is sweeping away the landmarks of centuries. It is as if a final day of judgment had dawned upon the world—as if the peoples of the earth had been called before the bar of a great and awful assize.

What will emerge when the waters of the flood go down? Will there be wreck and ruin, or purification and strength? The pessimist sees only chaos, but poets like Tennyson and the author of our "Battle Hymn of the Republic" saw long ago by prophetic faith a new order born from the anguish of the old. Republics in Austria, in Russia, in Bulgaria, possibly in Germany—the parliament of man and the federation of the world seem to be among the probabilities of tomorrow. "In the glory of the Lord" the old earth is marching on, and in time "it will look upon the travail of its soul and be satisfied."

DISILLUSIONMENT

Disillusionment on the Spree can hardly be greater than it is on the Bosphorus. In both localities it is the inevitable result of the dangerous habit of believing only what one likes to believe. Germany was more than a match for France or Russia; it is not certain that it was more than a match for both, and absolutely certain that after the German attack on Belgium and France had brought Great Britain into the war the odds were against Germany. After the German peristence in the ruthless submarine attacks had brought the United States into the war even a German professor had no excuse for believing his country to be invincible

There are no supermen, and England and France have 20,000,000 more of population than Germany. But it pleased the Germans to believe that they were a superior race; that the French were decadent and the British cowardly, and the Americans could not reach the seat of war. And now Germany is experiencing the inevitable result of believing pleasant fictions instead of really getting at the facts.

Mr. Morgenthau's current installment of his experiences in Constantinople, published in The World's Work, is extremely timely, for it describes the effect on the Turks of the British defeat at Gallipoli just at the time when the possession of Gallipoli is passing into British hands by the terms of the armistice. Under the influence of the victory at Gallipoli "the hesitating and fearful Ottoman, feeling his way cautiously amid the mazes of European diplomacy, gave place to an upstanding, almost dashing figure, proud and assertive." Enver Pasha boasted to Mr. Morgenthau that Turkey had done what no other nation could do; it had defeated the British navy, and Germany owed more to Turkey than Turkey did to Germany.

Yet a very moderate familiarity with history would have convinced any one who wished to know the facts, and was not content with fools' paradises, that England was not beaten when she abandoned further efforts at Gallipoli, and that England would not be beaten. One reverse, even a serious one, does not put a nation like Great Britain out of the fight. And now where is Enver? He was driven from office before the armistice was asked. And where is the Ottoman Empire? At the feet of Britannia. And who controls the Dardanelles now?

After a century of rapidly decreasing power and an existence maintained only by French and English fear of Russia, the Turkish Government was elevated for a moment to an altitude at which it saw visions of the Black Sea as a Turkish lake and the Ottoman power re-established over the entire Barbary coast. And now what does it see? The 25 articles of the armistice, and peace conditions which may now even leave the Turk in Constantinople, and certainly will leave no Christian population subject to his ideas of government, which have not improved in five centuries

DOG HERO ARRIVES

Gassed, Shell-Shocked and Only Dumb Animal to Receive the French Croix De Guerre

An Atlantic Port, Nov. 5.—Kolo, a huge Belgian police dog, shell shocked and gassed while carrying messages along the French front and the only dumb creature to receive the Croix de Guerre from the French Government, arrived here on a French liner to make his home in this country.

He is owned by Major George H. Robertson, of the American Aviation Service in France, who received the dog as a gift from his former owner, a French officer.

Kolo showed no particular effects from his injuries on the battle field. He seemed to be extremely nervous, but Bernard Smith, a friend of Major Robertson, who brought him over, said that nervousness was a trait peculiar to the breed.

Kolo will spend a few weeks in a canine quarantine hospital in this canine quarantine hospital in this city and then will go to the home Brooklyn.

FOE ADMITS DEFEAT

German Socialist Paper Concedes That War Has Been Lost.

"We have lost the war; we are conquered."

The State Department yesterday made public the foregoing extract and the text of an article reflecting the despair in Germany from the Schwaebische Tagewacht, a leading South-German Socialist paper.

The day brought other news of how Germany's cup of bitterness is filling to the brim. The Bolshevik government of Russia, realizing the imminent defeat of Germany, has refused to meet the third installment of the Brest-Litovsk indemnity. The Poles are organizing a national army and threatening Germany. They have demanded that Germany cease immediately the exportation of all raw material from Poland.

In Bavaria, according to an official dispatch from Basel, panic reigns. An official communique was necessary to quiet the fears of the population that armed bands of plunderers were appearing in the Tyrol. The communique maintains that "no immediate military danger menaces Bavaria. All measures have been taken. The population must come to their senses and give a friendly welcome to the troops sent to the district for their eventual protection."

The State Department's full text of the article in the German paper follows:

We have lost the war; we are conquered. These bitter words which we were long reluctant to express, now force themselves upon the lips of all. After defection of Austria and Turkey, even the blindest must see clearly. We cannot expect Austria and Hungary, in their present state, to reject the same condition imposed by the entente on Bulgaria. The situation is clear. Although the German army in the west holds its ground against overwhelming forces with great valor, new dangers arise on our hitherto safe flanks. We are conquered and only mendacious demagogues can dare to try to conceal this terrible fact. Three months of war cost us 100,000 dead and many more wounded. Nothing can be gained by such sacrifice. It is surely better to have populations heretofore belonging to the German Empire under foreign sovereignty than under the sod. We have nothing to expect from a further prosecution of the war, but an enemy invasion and complete internal collapse. We have no alternative today, but to acknowledge our defeat and conclude peace with the victors. What we wish is a just peace, but we are unable to enforce such a peace. If adversaries impose humiliating armistice terms and entente Socialists and peace friends cannot prevent them the future will be poisoned and the result would be that all those who hoped for gain for mankind from this war would share defeat with Germany. We should have to prepare ourselves for the future in which we could regain our liberty. But there is no sense in continuing the fight now, no matter what the entente does. In all probability publication of the armistice terms will be tantamount to their acceptance, and peace negotiations will soon follow; they will not be broken off, but conducted to an issue, come what may. It will depend on the wisdom of the adversaries whether that peace shall be a lasting peace or preface to new and more terrible world catastrophe.

SOLDIERS SHOOT TISZA

Assassins First Accuse Former Hungarian Premier of Responsibility for War.

Amsterdam, Nov. 5.—The Berlin Vossiche Zeitung contains a dramatic description of the assassination of Count Stephen Tisza, former Premier of Hungary, last week.

At 6 o'clock in the evening three soldiers invaded Count Tisza's residence and presented themselves in the drawing-room. Count Tisza, with his wife and the Countess Alamassy, advanced to meet the intruders, asking what they wanted.

"What have you in your hand?" a soldier demanded of Tisza.

Tisza replied that he had a revolver. The soldier told him to put it away, but Tisza replied:

"I shall not, because you have not laid aside your rifles."

The soldiers then requested the women to leave the room, but they declined to do so. A soldier then addressed Tisza as follows:

"You are responsible for the destruction of millions of people, because you caused the war."

Then, raising their rifles, the soldiers shouted:

"The hour of reckoning has come."

The soldiers fired three shots and Tisza fell. His last words were:

"I am dying. It had to be."

The soldiers quitted the house, accompanied by gendarmes, who previously were employed to guard the door.

HUNS TO PAY FOR DELAY

Must Stop War, or Germany to Fare Still Worse, London Says.

London, Nov. 5.—Discussing the possibility of Germany accepting the allies armistice terms, the Sunday Observer says:

A continuance of the war on Germany's sole initiative, when she is already responsible for four years of inconceivable horror, can not be tolerated. The time has come to force the issue by diplomatic as well as military means. Now that the main enemy is isolated hopelessly, but may be tempted to throw the heive after the hatchet and pay blindly for some supposed chance of better terms, the time has come to speak plainly to Germany.

"The allies and America must speak at last as masters. They are the masters of the means of arbitration by land and sea and air and of all resources of fighting and supplies.

"To permit this war to continue for one avoidable day or hour would be a crime of weakness on the part of the associates well nigh as culpable as the crimes of wickedness on the part of the enemy. Now either the thing must stop or the consequences must be made definitely worse for the enemy.

"There should be a specific penalty for every day which the struggle may be prolonged. All Germany must be made to know this.

"It is for the allies to declare that there never will be any abatement in the severity of their present terms, but for the rejection of these terms the new system in Germany, whatever it may be worth, will be held responsible from an assigned near date and that Germany when overthrown and invaded as the result of persistence in this struggle will be compelled without mitigation to pay its whole cost in cash or kind from the date named in the ultimatum."

OLDEST OF ALMANACS

Interesting Relic 3,000 Years Old —Found in a Tomb in Egypt.

There is in the British Museum an almanac 3 000 years old—probably the oldest almanac in the world. It was found in one of the buried tombs of Egypt; the owner must have valued it, since he had it buried with him.

It is written on papyrus, in columns, and there are 25 pages well preserved. Its chief purpose was to inform its owner whether each day was lucky or unlucky for any sort of enterprise. Certainly it was not so important to know that a certain day was the fifth day of Tobi, wit ha new moon and a prospect of rain, as to know that it was a day when you must not start on a journey, look at a rat, wash yourself with water, or even go outdoors before daylight.

This almanac was no brief yearly affair, but was planned for four years and gave for that period the dates of the fixed and movable feasts, of which the Egyptians had a great number. It was issued for the four years following the fifty-seventh year of Rameses the Great.

The days are written in red ink, and each one is followed by three characters—morning, day, evening—each with its significant mark to denote prosperous, indifferent, adverse; the first sign is in black ink, and the others are in red.

For example, the twenty-fifth of Thoth is marked "Good, good, middling," with the caution, "Do not go outdoors in the evening"; the fortunate qualities of the day apparently detained with the sun And in another month is a day of which it is declared, "A child born on this day will be a prince of the people."

When you consider how little a person has to do with the choice of his birthday, it is discouraging to find so many dangers awaiting an unlucky selection; one day assured your death in the jaws of a crocodile, and another birthday meant that you would be eaten by a serpent.

The day of all days to be born was the fifth of Phamenoth, the day of the great feast in honor of Neith, the mother-god of Egypt. Herodotus wrote about that feast more than two thousand years ago. He calls it the Feast of Lamps, when everyhouse must be illuminated.

The only almanac written a thousand years before Herodotus names the day on which the feast falls and commends it as fortunate for all manner of undertakings, since all the gods and goddesses were rejoicing and were well disposed toward mankind.

There were days when no one must go hunting or fishing, special days for eating beef and drinking wine, days when it was unlucky to travel and one was marked "Do nothing at all today!"

GERMANY'S COURSE

Believed in Washington That Allies Terms Will be Accepted.

Washington Nov. 5.—Germany by this time is probably acquainted with the terms of armistice, signed, under conditions of diplomatic unity, between the United States and allies at Paris.

Though no announcement had been made as to procedure with the armistice, it was believed here that no time was lost in sending the terms to Germany.

That she will accept was the flat statement of one official and the confidential prediction of many others. But the situation in Germany now is not clear, and there is a chance that the militarists may refuse to yield yet.

The allies stand united on President Wilson's basic peace principles as a foundation for the armistice and for future peace negotiations. As stated last week, the associated governments adhere to the President's program.

VIRGINIA NEWS

Following partial lifting Sunday in Roanoke of the closing order affecting churches and theaters, there was a sharp increase in the number of influenza cases reported yesterday. Seventy-nine new cases were reported Health authorities are not inclined to charge the increase up to the religious gatherings, but if there is any considerable increase by Wednesday, it is stated that the closing order will be renewed.

James I. Isenhouar, forty-one years of age, a machinist employed by the Southern Railway at the shops at Monroe, who was acting foreman of the shops at the time, was struck and fatally injured Friday evening in the yards at Monroe by northbound train No. 26. Mr. Isenhouar was quickly placed aboard a special train and rushed to Lynchburg, but he died as he was being brought into the city.

Two patrolmen have been detailed in the police department of Lynchburg to make investigations looking to the enforcement of Mayor Jester's "work or to the farm" movement. Under a new city ordinance all males will be required to put in full time, excepting in cases of illness or other unavoidable circumstances, or spend sixty days at the city prison farm. County magistrates in the suburbs will co-operate with the city by the enforcement of a State law, which, however is not quite so drastic as the city ordinance.

NEWS OF THE DAY

Confiscation of German and Austrian steamers on the Danube has been ordered from Budapest, where the situation is bordering on anarchy, according to advices received. Soldiers are pillaging military depots and selling food and clothing to civilians at enormous prices.

A Lausanne news agency says President Wilson has given assurances to the Lithuanians that they will get Libau (on the Russian Baltic coast) and Memel (a German Baltic port) as ports. It is added that Lithuania will be declared an independent state even before peace negotiations start.

President Wilson yesterday sent the following message by cable to the King of Italy: "May I not say how deeply and sincerely the people of the United States rejoice that the soil of Italy is delivered from her enemies? In their name I send your Majesty and the great Italian people the most enthusiastic congratulations."

The Polish Army, under the supreme political authority of the Polish National Committee, was recognized by the United States Government as autonomous and co-belligerent. Secretary Lansing so announced in a letter sent yesterday to Roman Dmowski, president of the Polish National Committee, who is now in Washington.

Administration officials concerned with the consideration of international and peace questions last night stated that the United States has taken no steps looking to the participation by this country in a great civil and military court for the trial of those guilty of crimes during the war, as suggested by Sir Frederick Edward Smith, British attorney general.

All the German mercantile vessels interned in Chilean harbors have been seized by the Chilean Government. Chilean armed forces late in September, according to Santiago dispatches, occupied all the interned German steamers in Chilean waters, the action being taken at that time to prevent the destruction of the ships by their crews. There had been attempts just previous to this by crews of the vessels to damage or sink their ships.

The German Press is evincing considerable disquiet over the Bolshevik danger in Germany. The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung publishes a long statement today concerning Bolshevik activities, which it attributes to the Russian embassy at Berlin. The Tageblatt says a leaflet has been distributed to the people of Berlin, and in particular to soldiers, signed by the "workers and soldiers' committee." The newspaper says its object is to incite soldiers to disobey military commands.

German papers are nervously wondering what cunning tactics Foch and Pershing are preparing for the taking of Longwy and its rich mining regions, stolen by the Germans in 1914. The position of Longwy is a natural defense. It forms a salient in the territory of Luxemburg and is surrounded by precipices. The town is in the shape of a hexagon and has six bastioned forts. The town of Longwy dates back to the seventh century. It belonged to France (until the German theft) ever since 1678, when the treaty of Ryswick ceded it from the Duke of Lorraine.

LIFE BELTS AID DRIVE

British Troops Swim Canal With Their Aid and Use Ropes to Help Others.

How does an army force its way over a canal or a river?

The story of how a British company negotiated the canal between Passchendale and St. Quentin most vividly reveals the manner and the difficulties overcome.

Before going into the line these Midlanders had been practiced in swimming in life belts in the Somme.

Armed with their life belts on the morning of the attack they came up through the smoky mist and threw themselves into the canal, which in places is shallow, in other full of water and in spots waist deep in thick mud. At another point it disappears into a dark tunnel.

Some of the men were armed with leads attached to lines which they threw across to those who gained the the farther bank by swimming, these light lines were used to draw over heavier ropes by which the men who could not swim crossed hand over hand.

Both ends of the tunnel were seized in the surprise attack and a howitzer was fired down one end. The noise echoed and re-echoed and out from the farther end came a stream of Germans, like burrowing animals out of a hole, until 1,000 prisoners had been taken, a quarter of the total of the entire operation.

A corporal determined to take a bridge guarded on the end near him by machine guns and swept from the other end by machine-gun fire. In a hand-to-hand fight he overcame the first pair of machine gunners, then ran the gauntlet of bullets from the other side and found three German engineers prepared to destroy the structure. He felled them and cut the mine loose so that it dropped into the river without damage to the bridge.
